

GROWTH, ACCOUNTABILITY AND DEMOCRACY IN GMB

Total GMB membership has grown by 15% in real terms over the previous five years following the adoption of the GMB@Work national organising strategy in 2005.

GMB emerged from a deep financial crisis and the threat of merger in 2004/5 with a new leadership but fewer officers and resources than at any other time. Yet by spending less and asking more of GMB Workplace Organisers GMB has turned around decades of membership and financial decline.

GMB developed a single set of 38 policies and organising approaches simply based on a common understanding of what works and what doesn't. These have been adopted and implemented in all GMB Regions and GMB Sections. But the GMB@Work strategy has five fundamental organising principles which we promote to all GMB Officials and GMB Workplace Organisers.

GMB's growth rate and the GMB@Work strategy have begun to fundamentally change the union. Four out of five members are now service workers, almost half are women, officials no longer sit on the CEC, sections have been reduced from eight to three and we have returned to an annual GMB Congress – all to focus on the core truth: that a growing GMB delivers for GMB members while a shrinking GMB lets members down.

GMB@WORK STRATEGY

- 1. The workplace is the building block of GMB. It is at work, rather than in the community or in the media, that working people are most able to build the collective solidarity they need to tackle the injustice and inequality they face head on.
- 2. Each GMB workplace is organised as if a ballot for industrial action was due. GMB need GMB members to be match fit and ready, but we also need our organisation in each workplace to be democratic, transparent and accountable every day.
- 3. The employers have different interests than GMB members. It is GMB members' employers who are the cause of most of GMB members' problems at work and the Union's job is to stand up for and promote members' interests, not to bury them in partnership agreements.
- 4. It is the process of industrial relations that builds a union. People don't join unions out of gratitude for what was done in the past but out of fear and anger for the present and hope for the future.
- 5. People are strongest when they organise themselves. GMB members are encouraged to find their own solutions to the problems they face. GMB members in each workplace must have the power and authority they need to make decisions and officers must stop doing for members what they can do for themselves. Workplace democracy and organising must co-exist.

SAY YES TO SECURITY AT WORK

As a GMB member you are much more secure at work because you are part of an effective union of 610,000 members. Whether you work full-time or part-time—whatever job you do—GMB can help you.
